

VIETRADE- 7. Investment into infrastructure

By force of funds to be mobilized for investment into infrastructure from all resources¹⁰, the provincial infrastructure has gradually been built up synchronously in plain and mountain areas. The Province has railway, roads, waterways, and airways. In urban areas, more extended get infrastructure systems, in which schools, local and general hospitals, and medical stations have been built. Communication and postal services were tooled up to ensure continuous activities. In electricity, 220KV lines have been in production in the basic purpose of fulfilling the demand from production and life. In the future, the electric network will be invested to carry electricity to remote and awkward areas. Big-scaled key projects such as Nhat Le Bridge, Kien Giang Bridge, Han La Port, and Dong Hoi Airport have been put into effect. National Road 12A, Provincial Road 11, Quang Hai Bridge were upgraded, and Rao Ca Lake, and the Thai River were dredged to serve transportation. Furthermore, many projects of bypass in Dong Hoi City, Bao Ninh 60-m Road, Chau Hoa Bridge, Provincial Road 16, road and bridge leading to Van Hoa commune, road to Tien Hoa Cement Zone from Hon La Economic Park, and Thuong My Trung Irrigation are under construction in an attempt to get the economy grown.

In 2010, some 950 km of ditches were built by concrete, thereby providing water for some 90.6% of rice paddy fields. More than 97% households used electricity. 100% communes, wards, and towns had roads for automobiles leading their centers. 159/159 communes were covered with radio and TV wave. And urbanization rate made up 19-20%.

8. Development of enterprises and economic sectors

State – owned enterprises were, basically, reorganized under the ratified schedule¹¹ in the progress of mobilizing financial resources from economic sectors to maintain socio-economic development and make enterprises' activities effective. Most reorganized enterprises gained increasing productivity, paying their labors well and, contributing significantly to the provincial budget.

374 cooperatives and 6,000 production groups in the Province have stretched all domains of the economy, to date. The mode of farm culture have extended and borne fruits¹². Private enterprises have developed rapidly and the number was 2,583 ones, adding 1,700 ones over 2005, at total capital of 11,073 million VND in 2010. They have made a crucial contribution to strengths and potential exploitation, laboring liberation, job offering, and income of residents.

